ADMISSION DAY.

The last legislature set aside the 31st. of October as a non-judicial day in the State of Nevada and styled it Admission Day.

This territory of Nevada was admitted to Statehood during the latter part of the war and it was figured that her steady out pour of bullion would save the Nation from continued civil strife. She turned loose a stream of wealth brought back the Nation to a sound financial basis and for years afterwards she continued to bleed that the great east might live.

Nevada literally saved the eastern states from an appalling money panic and the same men who received our silver at that time with open arms and exclamations of joy are now forging swords to move against us and destroy the birthplace of their saviour.

The faithful miners were existing in an era of hardship and were surrounded on every side by black hills and sagebrush wastes across which the cold snows never failed to drift or the wind from the Sierra to howl. At that time the entire state was one vast mining camp and the largest towns were at there best, the centre of inconvenience and isolation from the outside world.

'Tis true that many miners made magnificent fortunes and returned to the east to enjoy them after the war but the great bulk of diggers for wealth became stranded in their speculations and are stuck here yet. Many struck out for Montana, Idaho, Utah, Colorado and other growing Western states to try their luck again. Silver was quoted high and it paid to work it. Money was plentiful and improved mining machinery was sent from the east in a steady stream. The transcontinental railroad threw its track across the plains and thousands of settlers took up their homes in the land of the setting sun.

It seemed for a time that the west was destined to become the pride of the United States and her variety of resources and climates seemed to be an everlasting drawing card. But in the midst of prosperity and countless successes the inhabitants did not see the great danger which overshadowed them and in 1873 the knife of the gold bug and monopolists was thrust into them and the powerful white metal was demonized to the detriment of the west, until shouts of exultation and joy from the Bank of England and John Sherman.

Since that crime the mining camps of the battle born state have been less and silver has fallen to 83 cents.

The powers of the east had prostituted Nevada and then cast her aside. This insult is still in the minds of her people and the slap in her face still stings. What wonder is it that her hatred is bitter and that she seeks revenge.

Tomorrow is the date of our matrimonial failure with the Union and every voter should take up the gauntlet and fling it in the face of the east by voting for nothing but silver men on the 8th. of November.

A. Livingston now practically controls the wholesale liquor trade of the city. He is continually adding to his stock and sells only standard brands. He is also introducing some excellent California wines to the people of Carson, as well as foreign and domestic cigars of the finest quality. Drop in and inspect his stock. d 13 tf
